ROYAL BAKING POWDER
Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and cannot be used in competition with the multitude of low cost, short-weight, adulterated goods which crowd out the better quality. Sold only in cans. ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 Wall Street New York. 221

Mat. McCabe, of New Brunswick, Ill., offers to pay five dollars to any person troubled with bloody flux, who will take Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy according to directions and does not get well in the shortest possible time. One half of a 25 cent bottle of this remedy cured him of bloody flux, after he tried other medicines and the prescriptions of physicians without benefit. Mr. McCabe is perfectly safe in making this offer, as more than a thousand bottles of this remedy are sold each day and it has never been known to fail in any case of colic, cholera morbus, dysentery, diarrhoea or bloody flux, when the plain printed directions were followed. For sale by G. C. Thaxter.

FOR SALE: Eight head of cows and heifers of fine breed, also one Jersey cow with calf. Apply at this office or to J. T. Savage, V. & T. R. R. j 22 1w allow their children to cough and strain and cough and calmly say: "Oh! it's only a little cold," and keep giving them cheap and dangerous medicines, until they are down with lung fever or consumption, when they can be so easily relieved by BEGG'S CHERRY COUGH SYRUP? It has no superior and few equals. W. H. Chedie, Druggist.

Advice to Mothers.
Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays the pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Twenty five cents a bottle.

Milk may be canned just as you would can fruit, according to an exchange. Bring the milk to the boiling point and fill your jars to the brim with it; then shut air tight. This will keep any length of time, and be just as good when opened as when it was put up.

Families not already supplied should loose no time in procuring a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It is the only remedy that can always be depended upon for bowel complaint in all its forms. 25 and 50 cents bottles for sale by G. C. Thaxter.

You had better call and get some of Archer Baker's Charcoal Crackers; they are a sure cure for dyspepsia. Parties buying their groceries of Baker will never be troubled with heart disease, liver complaint, indigestion or anything that helps to make life unpleasant. j23 1m

Mrs. Viola Schmittou, agent for the Bankers' Mutual Relief Association of California, No. 315 California St., San Francisco, is in town looking after the interests of the Association, and can be found at the Ormsby House for the next few days. The lady will call upon both ladies and gentlemen, and explain the benefit of this form of insurance against sickness and accidents.

People in general should know what's best to do in case of a sudden attack of bowel complaint. It is a well established fact that prompt relief may be had in any case of colic, cholera morbus, dysentery or diarrhoea by giving a few doses of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It acts quickly, can always be depended upon and is pleasant to take. For sale by G. C. Thaxter.

INSANE.—Hugh Brooks, who kept a store in Carson in '76, was taken to the Napa Insane Asylum yesterday from Inyo county, Cal., in charge of two deputies. He has been insane for about eight months and has lately had a desire to shoot people.

Echoes of the Earthquake.

"Speaking of earthquakes," said Governor Stevenson of Nevada at the Palace last evening, "I am reminded of a funny yarn about Oliver Roberts, the Assistant Meteorological Observer of Nevada residing at Carson. Roberts had been doing some useful party work in the campaign, and demanded an office, but it was not forthcoming immediately, and so when the Legislature met he made what they call up there, a great North American kick. He told the Legislature that he had carried torches in the procession until his back was all raw."

"Why did his back get raw?" inquired the reporter.

"Coal oil from the torch running down his collar. I myself have gone home at night with coal oil in my shoes where it had run down the back of my neck. The old lamps which you fellows down here keep trimmed and burning are sent up to the political virgins of Nevada in the following campaign, and they most all leak, so that the kerosene trickles down the backs of our necks in streams."

"Well, Roberts told the members of the Legislature how he had worked, and they had a bill passed creating the office of Meteorological Director, thinking to give Roberts the place."

After the bill had passed they discovered that it took a scientific man to run the office, so they had to get one. Chas. Friend was the only really educated scientist in the State, so he fell in, but they made him agree to appoint Oliver Roberts of the kerosene grievance as his assistant. There was no salary for the assistant, but the party recognition tickled Roberts considerably. He was also employed in the Capitol building watching the State safe at night, for he was known to be a man who was dead square and dead game. The machine that registers the earthquake shocks with a swinging pencil on a fresh piece of paper was always kept in his room in the building, and he took great pride in it.

"As soon as the machine got rigged he began to pray for an earthquake."

"One night Controller Hallock and Chauncey Noteware fixed the off leg of the sofa, so that they could pull it with a cord, and while Roberts lay there dozing they shook up the seismograph so that it apparently registered a big earthquake. They then got by the door and pulled the leg of the sofa off, letting Roberts down. He rolled off on the floor, and as soon as he hit the carpet he reached for two big six shooters and began prancing around."

"Then seeing no one about to rob the safe, he looked at the earthquake register and was quite elated to find that he had nailed the shock. He took the time, and setting down made out an elaborate report."

"Meanwhile Noteware had slid over to the State Observatory and shook up the regular seismograph belonging to Friend."

"Roberts rushed over in the morning to make his report, and Friend said there must be a mistake, as he had felt no shock."

"When he went to consult his seismograph, however, he found the record of a big one, but when they came to compare the two they did not look at all alike. One record showed a movement from west to southeast, in a half circle, and the other quake was headed, according to the record, due east, toward Pizen Switch, near Soledad's ranch. Then Friend wrote out a report which showed the utter unreliability of the seismograph as a scientific recorder of shocks, as the two machines had only been a block apart and made different tracks. Pretty soon he found who had put up the job, and the two men had to go to the lake to keep out of Robert's way, as he was a bad man to fool with and a hitter from way back. So, you see, the disturbance was only local."

"Yes indeed," said Warren Sheridan. "I recollect that, but I don't think it was such a good joke as they had on old Prof. Stewart. He had a seismograph in Jake Young's saloon, and claimed that there was a slight tremble every day. The machine always shown a slight oscillation between 2 and 3 o'clock, so Professor Stewart wrote several articles for the Enterprise to show that it was the heat that made the earthquake, and he also showed that when the thermometer was below 90 there were no shocks. He hired a hall to give a lecture in, on the subject. One day a Virginia Chronicle reporter asked Stewart why he did not advertise his lecture in the newspapers. He said he was too well known and did not need to. "The reporter investigated the matter himself, and discovered that when the sun got too warm one of John Piper's hogs would get under the house to keep cool and occasionally scratch his back against the underpinning. This was what shook up the seismograph between the hours of 2 and 3. He waited until the day of the big lecture and then turned the story loose. "I tell you it knocked the lecture cold, and Stewart began to realize that he should have advertised in the Chronicle. He went East soon after that and never came back."—Examiner.

Monbars.

On Tuesday evening next at the Carson Theatre, the celebrated romantic actor, Robert Mantell, will produce D'Ennery's great heroic drama "Monbars" for the first time in this city. Of Mantell's performance the Chicago Inter Ocean says:

Mr. Robert Mantell appeared at the Grand Opera House last night in the play newly adapted from D'Ennery by Louis Nathal, and entitled "Monbars." There was a very large and remarkably enthusiastic audience. Mantell's performance, consideration of which we defer, was one of the most effective, in virility, in vividness of portraiture, in artistic quality, and in its comprehensive intelligence, we have witnessed in several seasons. The play has several very striking situations; that at the close of the third act, and the real denouement of the last act being especially strong. Mr. Mantell met these superbly, and well deserved the four recalls after the third act. This performance leaves no doubt as to Mr. Mantell's great ability as an actor of strong, passionate, emotional character, and places him in the front rank of romantic tragic actors. We can very heartily endorse the performance to the public.

ATHLETIC.—At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Capital Athletic Association it was decided to purchase a piece of land and erect a suitable building for gymnastic exercises, and where the different clubs of Carson could meet and train and generally enjoy themselves. The building will have a reading room, and on the grounds there will be laid out a walking course, lawn tennis courts, a base ball ground, bicycle track and the like. It is also proposed to admit ladies to the club, and in every way make the Association a valuable acquisition to the town in the way of a pleasant place of resort and amusement.

SHEDS ON FIRE.—Several miles of snow sheds have been burned West of Truckee, and they are still burning. There will probably be no mail from the West for several days, and no telegraphic communication, as the wires are down.

The United States Mint of San Francisco is said to be the largest of the kind in the world. Olcovich Bros.' store is the largest of the kind in the State. EAGLE MARKET.

Beef, Lamb, Mutton, Veal, Sausage, Etc

My facilities for purchasing good beef are second to none in the State, and customers can always be assured of the best in the market. This market was the first in this city to introduce the cold storage process, by which meats can be kept for weeks in the hottest weather. Our cold storage room is the largest and most perfect in the State.
